ABOUT

Novara Media is an independent media organisation addressing the issues that are set to define the 21st century, from a crisis of capitalism to racism and climate change. Within that context our goal is a simple one: to tell stories and provide analysis shaped by the political uncertainties of the age, elevating critical perspectives you're unlikely to find elsewhere. Driven to build a new media for a different politics, our journalism is always politically committed; rather than seeking to moderate between two sides of a debate, our output actively intends to feed back into political action.

FUNDING

We are funded almost entirely by our supporters' donations. A small proportion of our income comes from sales of our merchandise and event tickets. We also receive a small amount of revenue from 'superchats' and advertising on YouTube. Occasionally we receive grant awards, typically for specific projects.
